Choose the correct modal from the two choices
'Regrets'

As we get older and when we think about our past we sometimes ponder on the things that we should/can have done. And we also may/shall regret those things we did badly and the mistakes we made. In reality, we will able to/can always learn from our mistakes and hope to never make them again. For example, if I failed a test because of a lack of study, the next test I will/must hope to pass because of hard work. Remember too that some regrets are not based in reality and we must/may waste time thinking that they are. Would/should I have really not have been involved in a car crash if I had been driving more slowly? After all, the other driver ought to/will have been concentrating and not playing with their radio. We have to/would be honest with ourselves and live in the now. The only things we used to/can control are the things happening now, in this moment.
