It is a bright summer morning. Rahim, a seven – year – old boy, is playing with his friends in a garden. The garden is full of trees and flowering plants. After playing for some time, Rahim gets tired and decides to rest. He sits under a mango tree.

Suddenly, a ripe mango falls from the tree. Rahim picks it up, wipes it with his handkerchief and eats it. "Wow! The mango is sweet and delicious," he exclaims. Soon, he hears someone talking.

Rahim looks around the garden. He is surprised and terrified to see two chameleons talking to each other. "I think something is wrong with me," said the little chameleon. "What is it?" asked his friend. "I was grey on Monday and yellow yesterday and today I am brown. I am worried," replied the little chameleon to his friend. His friend laughed and replied "There is nothing wrong with you. We chameleons have the ability to change the colour of our skin. We change our body colour to convey our moods." Rahim is astonished to hear their conversation.
