Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan was a very famous teacher and the second President of India. He was born on September 5, 1888, and we celebrate his birthday as Teachers' Day in India to honor all teachers. He loved learning and teaching. He believed that teachers help us learn important things and become good people. He worked very hard to make sure education was available to everyone. Before he became the President of India, he was also a great professor and taught in many famous universities. He always respected his students and wanted them to grow. Because of his love for teaching, every year on September 5th, we thank our teachers for everything they do for us.
